Our Scholarship fund is now closed, and we are excited to open applications for an award to be given in 2025. You will see that the prices of our products in our store have been lowered to the cost of the products themselves. Thank you for your support!

We're now accepting applications for our Emerging Deaf Chef Scholarship Fund from emerging and aspiring deaf chefs in Australia as they begin their career. Through a mentoring support session, plus $500 upon completion of their Certificate III in Commercial Cookery training, the fund can be used for things like:

- Buying uniforms, kitchen and cooking tools
- Purchase of cookbooks
- Supplies needed to set up your business

This scholarship is possible because of the support from our community through the sale of our cutting boards and aprons, and donations to our scholarship fund.

Who can apply?

You must be a deaf or hard of hearing Australian citizen or permanent resident, preferably relying on Auslan as your everyday communication.

You must have recently completed a Certificate III in Commercial Cookery (SIT30821) during 2022 to 2024 from an Australian RTO (Registered Training Organisation).

How do you apply?

Fill out the application form and answer the seven questions in the form (in English or in an Auslan video).

Upload your photo and Cert III in Commercial Cookery (and video if you choose), and be sure to submit by the deadline Thursday, 18 December 2024!

An independent panel of judges will review the applications and rank the entries according to specific criteria.

The winner will receive:

- Your award certificate
- A mentoring session with Deaf Chef Ross via Zoom
- $500 to use toward supporting your career as a chef
